NEED OF NITROGEN PLANT IS SHOWN

Senator Underwood Wants Army Engineers to Report on a Site.

URGES MEASURE AS PART OF PREPAREDNESS PLAN

Declares Manufacture of Chemical From Air Is Also Needed as Relief for Farmers.

The need of a plant or plants for making nitrogen from the air to be used in manufacturing explosives for national defense and for making fertilizers for the farms was strongly urged in the Senate yesterday after-noon by Senator Underwood of Alabama, who advocated an amendment to the army bill, offered by himself, providing for an investigation by army engineers of the entire question, including the selection of a site for such a plant.

The Senate committee on agriculture already has reported a bill to Congress providing for the construction by the government of plants for the manufacture of nitrogen from the air, carrying $15,000,000, and authorizing as many as five plants. Senator Smith of South Carolina, author of the bill, addressed the Senate in support of the measure at the conclusion of the speech of Senator Underwood, and in reply to questions intimated that he might offer his bill as an amendment to the army bill later.

Earlier in the day Senator Salisbury of Delaware introduced a bill to provide for fifty-year leases on water-power sites in navigable streams, to be utilized for operating hydro-electric plants for taking nitrogen from the air.

Offer of du Pont Company.
Counsel for the du Pont Powder Company has informed the War Department that the company stood ready to build such a plant for production of nitric acid for manufacturing explosives and would sell the product to the government at prices to be fixed by the Secretary of War, if Congress would provide legislation making the project practicable. A letter renewing this offer was read to the Senate. In response to a question by Senator Kenyon of Iowa, Senator Salisbury said that the bill he introduced was prepared by the du Pont Powder Company.

Senator Underwood attacked the du Pont Powder Company and its agents, charging them with exerting powerful influences to defeat such legislation because of a desire to control all the powder business in the United States, and to prevent the government from entering the field. In this connection he declared that Hudson Maxim, a member of the navy's civilian advisory board, was a consulting adviser for the du Pont Company, and as such had characterized congressmen who fought for a government nitrate plant as "pork barrel politicians."

Urges Need of Competition.
"So says this corporation agent, speaking for his own interests and those of his employers," Senator Underwood declared. "I do not wish to make charges against a big corporation. The du Pont Powder Company is in legitimate business and naturally does not want the government to compete with it. It wishes to control all the powder business of the country. It has a right to have its agents here attempting to defeat my proposal, but the Senate of the United States has no right to permit the du Pont Powder Company to defeat this legislation."

Senator Underwood also declared that Hugh Cooper of Minnesota, another consulting engineer of the du Pont Company, came to Washington when the nitrate provision was being fought in the House during consideration of the army bill and used his influence against the measure.

"Mr. Cooper declared that this proposal never could be enacted into law," the Alabama senator continued, "and far be it from the du Pont Powder company's agents thus far have succeeded in their fight. But the American people have a right to know just what this issue is."

United States Dependence on Chile.
The United States was dependent on Chile for nitrogen, and the establishment of an air nitrogen industry for defense in war is a national need, Senator Underwood said. He also pointed out that cheap fertilizer was necessary to a cheap food supply, and Congress should see to it that cheap fertilizer was put within the reach of all.

Senator Underwood said the United States would need 180,000 tons annually in time of war. To produce this would require 100,000 to 125,000 horsepower. Unless the government ascertained at once places where so much power could be produced, private corporations would secure these sites.

Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire, referring to hearings before the Senate agriculture committee on the bill of Senator Smith of South Carolina to appropriate $10,000,000 for development of five government nitrate plants, said he understood there were only two available sites in the United States for such a purpose.

Many Sites Are Available.
Senator Smith asserted that experts had told the committee that there were numerous sites for such an enterprise. One expert, he said, however, had declared that there were only two sites capable of developing enough power for production of enough nitrogen to supply the needs of the United States. One of these was at Mussel shoals, on the Tennessee river, in Alabama. Senator Underwood's state, and the other on the Columbia river in Washington.

The South Carolina Senator championed his bill as against the Underwood amendment, maintaining that it would provide a means for immediate acquisition of government water power sites before all available sites had been pre-empted by private corporations.

ARE RESTORED TO DUTY.
Accused Members of Vice Squad Relieved of Suspension Order.

Policeman M. L. Howes, former acting chief of the vice squad, and Policeman J. E. Elliott, who was his assistant, today were restored to duty in their respective precincts. Howes in the first and Elliott in the third precinct. They were suspended when a warrant was issued for them following their visit to the house of Mrs. Rose Kennett, 325 Delaware avenue northeast.

The order for their restoration to duty was issued by Commissioner Brownlow following a conference with Maj. Pullman. It reads:

"When Privates Howes and Elliott of the Metropolitan police force were arrested, charged with unlawful entry of a house on Delaware avenue, both men were suspended by the major and superintendent of police upon my direction. In pursuance of the ordinary routine whereby every police officer who is arrested, charged with a serious offense, is at once suspended pending the investigation of the case. Both men have pleaded not guilty to the charge and have asked for a jury trial. Inasmuch as this will probably delay the determination of the case for some time, and my investigation of the affair convinces me that the department should not, at this time, be deprived of the services upon the recommendation of Maj. Pullman, they will be restored to duty today."
